

A state-wide nursing organization's role in changing nursing education regulation during the COVID-19 pandemic

S. Rosenberg

University of Southern New Hampshire, USA

Abstract

Nursing and other health professions necessitate a dedication to lifelong learning. Join us for a presentation on the nursing and health professions continuing education initiative at Southern New Hampshire University, including its inspiration, strategy, difficulties, accomplishments, and best practises. This lifetime learning cooperation is aimed at online learners looking for non-degree choices and stackable certifications. The ability to gain extra "just in time" qualifications, which may become necessary as healthcare changes, can lead to higher-quality care and job progression

Biography:

Dr. Rosenberg joined Southern New Hampshire University (SNHU) as an adjunct faculty in 2014. She became a Faculty Lead in the Graduate Nursing Program in 2015. She transitioned to the role of Associate Dean early in 2018. She is a Board-Certified Adult Health Clinical Nurse Specialist (ACNS- BC) and a Certified Nurse Educator (CNE). Stacey has clinical experience in acute care and community/ public health. Dr. Rosenberg has taught both online, hybrid, and in face-to-face settings at various educational levels over the last 21 years. She has extensive knowledge and experience in curriculum and program development and accreditation. Dr. Rosenberg's professional interests include: community partnerships and global health interests.

References :

- Dede, C. (2018, October 19). The 60-year curriculum: Developing new educational models to serve the agile labor markets.
- Gallagher, S. R. (2016). The future of university credentials: New developments at the intersection of higher education and hiring. Harvard Education Press.
- Jones-Schenk, J. (2018). Alternative credentials for workforce development. Journal of Continuing Education in Nursing, 49(10), 449-50. Doi: 10.3928/00220124-20180918-03

Citation: S. Rosenberg University of Southern New Hampshire, USA A state-wide nursing organization's role in changing nursing education regulation during the COVID-19 pandemic International Conference on Cognitive Neuroscience and Dementia Brain Stimulation, July23-24,2021, Dubai,UAE.